ABOUT THE AUTHOR

Cynthia E. Castile is a writer, graphic artist, and character designer from Nashville, Tennessee. She has spent all her life creating characters and their stories, and she has put all her spirit into her designs.

Ever entranced by the genre of fantasy and its capabilities, she chose to portray struggles and the everlasting love she believes in through the written word.

Still young, she strives to spread peace, kindness, and imagination through any medium she touches and persuade minds with her love of openness and youth.

Change your wings.

Merpati Chandra's troubled life transforms when she is stolen away to the parallel worlds of hell and paradise. With a chance escape from corruption and a new life amongst beings of light, she finds a boy who can help her define herself against the dark forces threatening to reclaim her and the inner apprehensions that constrict her.

Follow Merpati's path of self-discovery and growth as she forges bonds and friendships and becomes the hope of an empire. Watch as she learns to trust herself, and find out: when the final bell has rung, will she still be standing with wings spread wide?

In a world in transition beyond the one we perceive, Merpati finds herself caught up in all the forces around her. One moment in darkness, the next in light, she comes to trust a boy who offers himself as her guide, a boy in an unique position as she—the boy who escaped.

Under the nose of a floundering King, Commander Malin begins shifting the tide between the worlds of Ares and Sera. The new girl in his empire to reclaim the glory of the Sera. At the same time, an estranged Sera prince threatens the humans' sovereignty, while a confused Ares crosses the rift for their sake.

Emotional, provocative, this tale of trust and contrasts shows how easily the grey area is traversed.
